Ementa: This course is about short stories in English, and particularly about the structure of individual short stories and their relationship to a tradition. The course aims at the study of this invented prose narrative, usually dealing with a few characters and aiming at unity of effect and often concentrating on the creation of mood rather than plot. In brief, this course is constituted as an interdisciplinary subject that encompasses a wide range of critical initiatives. There will also be reference to the wide range of topics and wide variety of critical methodology associated with the practice of Short Story or Fiction Studies. The teaching method will consist of seminars, lectures and, above all, class discussions, including an oral presentation by each student.
